ACCOMPLISHED FACT.

BERLIN, September 11th.

It is reported that six rioters were killed and ten wounded in a collision between the police and unemployed outside Dresden town hall.

Informal discussions are proceeding between Berlin and Paris in order to ascertain what prospects there might be of opening definite negotiations. The visits of the French Ambassador to the German Chancellor at the Foreign Office are undoubtedly closely connected with political reconnoitring.

MAILS SHOT THROUGH AIR. COMING MARVELS OF WIRELESS CONTROL.

"The coming wonders of the air mail," a correspondent of a London paper writes engaged the attention of the world's experts who attended the Congress recently held in London. General Williamson, our Director of Mails at the G. P. O., and a keen student of supersonic dispatch by mail-coaches that fly, read a paper which brought all post-war progress within a clear focus. But what has been done already pales to insignificance compared with what we are about to do. A world growing amazingly smaller! That is what our international experts visualise from the postal point of view.

NIIGHT-FLYING IN THE FUTURE.
"Organised night-flying, as soon as we have it on a European, and then on a world wide basis, will transform the whole aspect of the carriage of mails by air. Here, for example, is one fascinating prospect into the future. Vast, automatically stable 'ships of the air,' with their captains controlling them from a bridge with engine telegraphs like those of a sea ship, will stand ready each evening in London to rush upward and outward across Europe with urgent business mails. It will be a new era in time-saving for the commercial world."

TO ITALY IN A NIGHT.
"Take, just as an instance, the case of the Italian mail. Something like a couple of tons, in one night's dispatch, the important mail will be stowed within the capacious hull of a winged, all-metal mail-carrier. And then that jet-thrust rising and disappearing into the night will make its unchecked flight across Europe travelling with such endurance and at such speed that the mails it carries will be delivered in Italy next morning. Weird indeed is the machine seen developing now as a perfected air-carrier of mails. It is a hollow tube of metal shaped and stream lined like some monster shell. Tiny metal wings project on either side. In its 'nose' is an automatic engine of immense power. It has no pilot, no human control of any kind on board. Its ascent and descent, and its guidance altitudes, will be accomplished entirely by a specialised system of wireless control."

SHOT ACROSS THE OCEAN.
"Super-express mails, packed in these aerial torpedoes, will be shot at enormous speed above continents, seas and oceans. Such machines, flashing like projectiles through the low-resistance of the upper air, may carry a letter between London and Paris in an hour! They may eventually—astonishing though the prospect seems—enable us to post a letter in the evening here in London, and have it delivered next morning, on the other side of the ocean, in New York!"

THE LATE PRESIDENT
HARDING
(FROM IRVING & JONES.)

Everybody who knew President Harding loved him. He did not pretend to be a great man in the sense in which the word is usually understood, but he was great in many things which count most—in his warmth of personal affection, his unwavering honesty of purpose, his absolute loyalty, and, above all, his charming simplicity. It was my privilege to know him in the old days as a Senator, and again on the country verandah at Marion, Ohio, where he "conversed with the best minds" previous to his election, and again in his glory when he was inaugurated as President. I recall the words he spoke when a great multitude of all sorts of people flocked to the White House to offer their congratulations on Inauguration Day. In the closing months of President Wilson's regime the big iron gates of the White House remained closed, and the new President, with the hearty concurrence of his wife, signalled the day by reopening the gates to a little act of thoughtfulness which the public vastly appreciated.

"Mrs. Harding and myself," he said with a winning smile, "do not want to be considered superior people. We are just folks like yourselves who have come to the White House for a while, and will then go away. Whenever it is possible and consistent with my duties the White House will be open to you. One other thing, while I am President I want every little orphan boy and girl in the United States to look to me not so much as the big boss at Washington, but as a real father who cares for all his flock, and wants to leave America a better place for everyone than he found it—a better place to live in, to grow up in, and to fight the battle of life in."

Here is the President's story in a nutshell, as most of his fellow-countrymen see it today: Born in humble rural surroundings, chopping wood, milking the cows on his father's farm, his success is that typical of self-made men. At odd times he became famous reporting village events, and became famous locally as a politician. Then he bought the Marion Star, and, with his wife's aid in reading proofs, for which she was very well fitted—she had been a country school-teacher—he built up the country newspaper into success, and we here believe that anybody achieving that task has certain great qualities. In these days the Marion Star was a one-man machine. Its owner was virtually reporter, printer, publisher, editor, and everything combined, and these things Mr. Harding did well. Elected to the Ohio State Senate in 1898, he assumed political office for the first time in 1903, when he was elected Lieutenant-Governor of Ohio. Elected to the United States Senate in 1914, he became American President on Nov. 2nd, 1920, his 53th birthday.

The outstanding achievement of his career was the Naval Conference at Washington. The idea originated with the Secretary of State, Mr. Hughes, but was heartily supported from first to last by the Chief Executive. He said once that he regarded the Naval Conference as the greatest achievement of his Administration, and the failure of the Ship Subsidy Bill as the greatest disappointment. In the last few months he had zealously advocated American participation in the World Court.

PRESIDENT AND PRESS.
Of all the Presidents I have known at Washington in the last twenty years I count Mr. Harding perhaps the most approachable. Like Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft, he was particularly accessible to "my good comrades of the Press," and his chats with newspapermen at White House, native and foreign alike, were something more than a formality, always entertaining, and very often instructive. During the Washington Conference, I recall, he ruled that all questions by newspaper correspondents—they are usually very much the same in their bearing on public affairs here as the questions in your House of Commons—should be committed to writing, but he was always ready to answer supplementary questions, and these usually extracted the most information. He started the proceedings by rising from his desk and saying, "Well, boys, I'm glad to see you. There's nothing very new to-day, but if there is anything to be said I am here to tell it. Fire away." Occasionally some distinguished visitor would be admitted to the Press conference. I believe Lord Riddell was amongst them during the Washington Conference, where he acted as official spokesman of the British Press—but usually the interview was strictly confined to duly accredited correspondents from all parts of the United States and, indeed, all parts of the world.

In these days I was president of the Association of Foreign Press Correspondents, when many journalistic visitors from abroad were naturally desirous to see the President at close range. The day after I mentioned the matter to the President, and after a brief consultation with his personal secretary, who declared that the President and Mrs. Harding would be very gratified to acquiesce, a gilt-edged invitation on White House stationery was delivered to every member of the foreign Press at Washington, asking him to take tea with the President and Mrs. Harding at the White House at 3.30 p.m., each being personally delivered by an official messenger, travelling in the President's own motor-car. It was a most gracious and enjoyable affair. Tea was served by prominent Washington hostesses in the great East Room, roughly corresponding to one of the State apartments of Buckingham Palace, a string band of American Marines played, and uniforms of military and military aides were in attendance. "Mrs. Harding" in elegant hands and chatted personally with over 200 persons who were present. I have before me a cable letter signed by President Harding, in which the "dead Chief Executive" expressed the "keen pleasure he and Mrs. Harding had felt in meeting the representatives of so many foreign newspapers, and his recognition of the fact that the success of the Naval Conference was due in large measure to the

RAILWAY SUPERVISION
OPPOSED BY MANCHURIA.
AN EMPHATIC PROTEST.
"FOREIGN GUARDS WOULD BE TREATED AS INVADERS."

MUKDEN, August 30th.
Probably more anger has been provoked in the provinces than in Peking over the proposal to institute some kind of foreign control of the railways through the agency of police and railway accountants. The matter is particularly interesting because they have the Chinese Eastern Railway problem on their hands but because the extra mural sections of the Peking-Mukden line have become a purely Manchurian line under the name of the Shanhaikwan-Mukden railway.

Knowing that I would not fail to get a frank expression from General Yang Yu Ting, the Chief of Staff and Senior Military Councillor, I called on him and asked him what he thought of the plan. What he said was so remarkable that I give the gist as accurately as I can transcribe it.

"First," he remarked, "I would like to make Manchuria's position clear in regard to the whole Chinese situation as that is apparently misunderstood both by the foreign Press and by foreign Diplomats. Whilst we have serious differences amounting to an open quarrel with certain factions in China nevertheless we look upon all that as a domestic affair which must inevitably find its own solution without the interference of others. So far as foreign problems are concerned we Chinese are united—we wish to be left alone to work out among ourselves without outside interference our own settlement."

In regard to the Linchong affair and the diplomatic note we in Manchuria resent the implication that a broad generalization, an indictment of every province can be framed from a particular incident. Foreigners in Manchuria travelling on our railways receive full protection. The recent outrage on the South Manchuria Railway, although trivial compared to Linchong, is an illustration that even so-called foreign control is illusory when it comes to dealing with banditry. It would hardly tell you that the South Manchuria system is purely Japanese, with Japanese railway guards. No one will be found brave enough to declare that the Japanese are not highly efficient; yet this incident occurred in the very heart of their system.

We in Manchuria believe that those responsible for Linchong should be punished and that it would do good if the Chihli Militarists, instead of looting their troops on to the railway lines and making travel so unpleasant for civilians particularly on the Peking-Hankow line, were forced to clean up the country, as could be done in six months. But this is very different from our advocating a foreign-controlled railway police system. We think it will prove disastrous for British trade if England becomes associated with such a project. Last year there was nearly a British-British boycott here in Manchuria; owing to unneutral actions around Peking and Tientsin; our people have been put in an excited condition by all these rumours. You foreigners are all out here for profit and you must inevitably find that those who adopt an unfriendly attitude will pay for it through their pockets.

I tell you plainly that in Manchuria we would resist by force the entry of any foreign controlled police in our territory—we should fire off them, just as any other self-respecting country would do. How, then, could you foreigners reconcile the fact that in certain parts of China—the police railway-system could not be applied? In the matter of the Shanhaikwan-Mukden Railway the childish manoeuvre was tried last year of entering away all the British engineers in an attempt to force our hands. We were within an ace of putting in Japanese engineers. I am perfectly willing that you should publish these remarks; it is high time foreign nations realized they are playing with fire and that not only can fingers be burnt but the whole body as well.—Far Eastern Times.

heartily and constant co-operation of all sections of the Press. That act was characteristic of the kindly President, who might have lived longer if he had not burdened himself with so many duties he deemed incidental to his great office.

CODE FOR REPORTERS.
Twenty years ago Mr. Harding drafted a code for his reporters which I quote to-day as illustrating the character of America's "most human President."

Remember, there are two sides to every question; get them both.

Be truthful; get the facts. Mistakes are inevitable, but strive for accuracy. I would rather have one story exactly right than a hundred half-wrongs.

Be decent; be fair; be generous. Abuse rather than denounce. There is good in everybody; bring out the good and never needlessly hurt the feelings of anybody.

In reporting a political gathering, give the facts; tell the story as it is, not as you would like to have it; treat all parties alike; if there is any politics to be played we will play it in our editorial columns.

Treat all religious matters reverently. If it can possibly be avoided never bring ignominy to an innocent man, woman, or child in telling of the misdeeds or misfortune of a relative.

Don't wait to be asked, but do it without the asking; and above all, be clean, and never let a dirty word or suggestive story get into type. I want this paper so conducted that it can go into any home without destroying the innocence of any child.

This code the President observed in his public career, and almost alone of political leaders, he has made no real enemy.—Daily Telegraph.

CHINA'S FINANCIAL COMMISSION.
AN INTERVIEW WITH DR.
W. W. YEN.

With funds once more in hand, the new commission headed by Dr. W. W. Yen which is to inquire into and report upon the question of reorganizing China's national debt is progressing rapidly with preliminary arrangements and will soon be ready to get to work in earnest. The organization of a staff has already been completed and the Commission is now merely waiting for quarters to be secured and made ready for it. Suitable offices have been found in the Ministry of Justice, and Dr. Yen, in the course of an interesting interview, expressed the hope that they would be available within a week or two.

The task upon which Dr. Yen and his colleagues have embarked is one of no ordinary magnitude. While the function of the Commission is purely advisory, it is correspondingly broad in its scope and the questions to be studied will include not only those of a purely financial nature but many others which have a bearing on the finances of the country.

As explained by Dr. Yen, the Commission's duties are: first, to ascertain what China owes, and second, to study and make recommendations upon the problem of consolidating the country's debt. He thought that three months at least would be devoted to the first phase of the work, and hoped that the second would be completed some two months after that. It would, of course, remain for the Government to decide whether the recommendations made should be adopted, revised or rejected, but as several members of the present Government were members of the Commission, he hoped that its work would meet with the approval of the Cabinet unless a political disturbance came in the meantime.

The Commission is approaching its work in a most business-like manner, and means to leave no feature of it neglected. The assistance of a number of the Government's foreign advisers will be enlisted, and in addition the senior members of the British, American, French and Japanese banking communities will be invited to act, with four representatives of the Chinese banks, as honorary members. The object of this is, of course, to facilitate expression of the bankers' views on the various matters dealt with and to ensure close co-operation with them. In addition, there will be a staff of thirty experts from the various Government departments, and twenty assistants.

A VITAL REQUIREMENT.
The first requirement when work has commenced will be full and accurate information regarding past financial transactions. It will naturally be essential, if the Commission is to accomplish its object, that it should have free access to all records relating to such transactions, and Dr. Yen is anxious that its authority should be made to include the right to examine all documents bearing on financial matters.

"It is only in this way," he pointed out, "that the actual condition of the country's finances can be ascertained; and no reform can begin until we know how we stand."

This desire has already been satisfied by the Ministry of Communications which has submitted a detailed and tabulated statement of its finances, and it is hoped that the other departments of the Government will follow suit.

In the meanwhile Dr. Yen is making a study of all the general literature on Chinese finance, that he can obtain, and he states that he has been astonished at the volume of it. Among other things, he has found a number of valuable treatises which have never been published in English and are, therefore, not generally known. Authentic statements are, however, rare.

A TENTATIVE PLAN.
As regards the measures which might be recommended for the consolidation of the national debt, Dr. Yen has naturally postponed any definite conclusions. He thinks, however, that such consolidation would not of necessity involve fresh borrowing. With the consolidation of existing liabilities much security would be released and become available, while a limited portion of the Customs surtax could be used as additional security for an issue of bonds with which to redeem the old debts. These bonds, properly secured, would have an immediate market value and by means of them the present multiplicity of issues could be done away with.

In this connection, a very interesting point was raised by Dr. Yen. He expressed the belief that a material reduction in the present "floating" debt would automatically be accomplished by conversion, since, if holders of unsecured scrip are offered first-class securities in exchange it is reasonable to suppose that a discount and a lower rate of interest would be acceptable.

It is to this matter of floating debt that the Commission will first give its attention, and it is hoped that means will be found in the near future to dispose of it. Current liabilities, Dr. Yen remarked, had hung like a millstone around the neck of every recent Minister of Finance, so that time which should have been devoted to the main questions of finance has been forever occupied with pacifying creditors or seeking the release of surpluses with which to satisfy them.

The first move will be to secure freedom of action by liquidating floating debt. The Government can then proceed unhindered with the task of setting in order its major obligations.—Far Eastern Times.

THE RUBBER INDUSTRY.
VIEWS OF THE STRAITS SETTLEMENTS
COLONIAL SECRETARY.

In the report on the Straits Settlements for the year 1932, the Acting Colonial Secretary writes:—

The high price commanded by rubber in the past has not been without harmful effects. Apart from being an important factor in the local high cost of living, it has led to a certain degree of extravagance in the administration of large estates; it has caused rubber properties to be regarded as a source for acquiring large profits rapidly, not as valuable assets that should be carefully preserved; it has led land owners to plant up unsuitable land with rubber, so that in parts of Malacca and Province Wellesley low-lying land with a high water table, suitable for padi or certain annual crops, is often found to contain stunted and unhealthy rubber trees with an inadequate root system, that can never yield a profit unless the price of rubber is unduly high; finally it has caused public interest to be centred on rubber cultivation and has led to the neglect of all other crops giving reliable but smaller profits.

The period of depression that now appears to have ended has done much to counteract some of these ills. Rubber companies of good standing have set their houses in order and have succeeded in producing rubber at a cost per pound that is believed to be lower than that obtaining in any other country. In some cases the upkeep of the estates has suffered, but instances of this are not very numerous. Padi cultivation in the Colony has benefited, and there has been much interest evinced in the possibilities of developing other crops. There is a danger that an improvement in the price of rubber will cause a return of many of the former undesirable effects, and every effort should be made to prevent this.

This planting community continues to be interested in the possibility of increasing the yield of individual rubber trees by bud grafting from selected high-yielding mother trees. The recent work of the Department of Agriculture has shown that numerous difficulties remain to be overcome before this procedure can be relied upon to give satisfactory results on an estate scale, and also that it is unlikely that the excessively high yields once promised by this means will be realized. The work is still in an experimental stage requiring further investigation. There is, however, every need for the active support of further experimental work.

The output of manufactured rubber goods, especially soles of boots and complete canvas boots and shoes with rubber soles, is increasing in the Colony. The goods are exported to a considerable extent, being exported to China.

It would appear desirable to impress on rubber growers and others the importance of encouraging the use of crepe rubber soles (unvulcanized). Such soles have been found most satisfactory in actual use; they are light and springy, and they grip well and wear well. In addition to this, they contain 100 per cent. rubber, and are produced by any grower who can turn out of his existing rubber factory with his existing machinery the complete article ready for use. The crepe rubber sole is finding a ready market in England; but it is curious and disappointing to find that shoes soled with it are not to be seen for sale in the European-owned shops of the Colony and Federated Malay States. If the world used the crepe rubber sole there would be no further need of restriction.

Only two diseases of rubber call for comment. Pink Disease (Corticium salmoneum) occurs fairly generally in the eastern third of Province Wellesley, though it is not so prevalent as in parts of the Federated Malay States. During the year it was found for the first time in three widely separated localities in Penang Island, two being on the western side. All these attacks are receiving regular attention. There were no cases of the disease in Malacca.

Mouldy Rot (Sphaeroma imbricatum) was present in Malacca on one estate only at the beginning of the year. Here it regularly received adequate treatment. Later it appeared in 4 new areas all of which are near the Johore boundary. The disease has been present for some years in Johore, and as it is easily conveyed on tapping knives or clothing, its appearance in Malacca on the Johore boundary is anticipated. It is spreading generally in the Peninsula in spite of every effort to control it. All the Malacca planters have been advised of its appearance, and its treatment on infected holdings is being regularly demonstrated and enforced. The small holders naturally require teaching before they understand the need for treatment and for carrying out very thoroughly the measures recommended.

IRRITATED & INFLAMED EYE

can be directly traced in many cases to the Sunday Motor trip and Golfing. The dust from sections of the local roads contain a decided eye irritant. A suggestion for these trips would be to keep the windshield up and to use a pair of Sun glasses. Sun glasses of any pattern with either Crookes, Luxol, Flexol, Amber, London Smoke, or Blue lenses are obtainable at very moderate prices from The Hongkong Optical Co., successors to Clark & Co., Manufacturing and Refracting Opticians—the most competent manufacturing optical establishment in South China—located in 63, Queen's Road Central (opposite to the Singer Sewing Machine Company)—Adv.

RAISING THE L.O. A DIFFICULT OPERATION.

People passing along the Praya yesterday saw that the sunken submarine, L.O., had been so far raised that her bow and most of her conning tower were above water. She was lying with a bad list to port. When work ceased late on the previous night (Tuesday) she had been so moved that her bow, instead of facing practically dead on to the Praya, was facing towards the Murray Pier, whilst she had also been moved forward on to a bank in the vicinity of the sunken vessel. The object of those in charge of the salvage operations is to move the L.O., if possible, right on to the bank, so that she will rest there on an even keel. At present only the forepart is on the bank. With the raising of the bow the stern seems to be deeper into the water and it is now thought that she has anchored herself in the mud by means of her rudders or by her propellers. This makes the operation of raising her stern rather difficult. Throughout yesterday the L.O.—a sister submarine—and one of the salvage boats, the Cheradi, were engaged in pumping compressed air into the chambers at the stern and driving out the water flooding the after part. It is stated that one or two chambers which were thought to be free from water are flooded, as it has been found recently that several valves which were thought to have been closed were in reality open when the submarine went to the bottom.

The operations for the last few days have been conducted by the Commandeur H. E. Grace personally and the Commander of the Dockyard (Commander Brooke).

THE AMATEUR DRAMATIC CLUB.

A DENIAL.

Apocryphal of a paragraph, appearing in the Daily Press on August 17th, concerning the probability of several productions by the Hongkong Amateur Dramatic Club in the coming winter season were somewhat surprised to see in our morning contemporary an announcement practically to the effect that a production by the local club is unlikely. On again interviewing the Hon. Secretary and Treasurer of the Club (Mr. W. A. Hannibal) yesterday afternoon we learn that the enterprises contemplated and reported by us are still being pursued and we may expect before long to receive some definite news as to the nature of the Club's first presentation.

SAIGON RICE MARKET.

Messrs. Wm. G. Hale and Co., Ltd., in their circular dated Saigon, September 1st, says: Since our last report issued on the 6th ultimo, our market has strongly advanced. This is due principally to the fact that it is reported from China and Hongkong that the crop in South China has been greatly damaged by the last strong typhoons, also that one of our Chinese millers here has been compelled to buy paddy at any price to cover his sales of rice and that it is rumoured the stocks of paddy in the interior are almost all exhausted.

Furthermore, it is announced that an important part of the delta in Tonkin has been flooded, spoiling the crop. Inundations are reported also in some parts of Cochinchina and Cambodia.

Consequently and notwithstanding the lack of demand, except small transactions to Manila and Cebu, our market closes very firm, with an upward tendency, and very few sellers.

SPORT.

LAWN BOWLS.

A NARROW VICTORY FOR SHANGHAI.

The Shanghai Interport bowlers played their second match yesterday afternoon against the Civil Service Cricket Club, whom they defeated by the narrow margin of one point.

The match on the whole was not nearly such a good one as that played at the Police Recreation Club the previous evening, most of the players failing to get the run of the green. The Civil Service men, after taking the lead at the first head by one point, lost their slight advantage for next three heads. The fifth and sixth heads, which they won by two shots in each case, gave them a substantial lead of three points. The Shanghai men then came into the picture and in the seventh head a fine score of five shots put them ahead once more. At the twelfth head they were leading by four points, and two heads later they increased their lead to 7 points. From then onwards the home men put up a hard struggle and at the next to the last head they had reduced their opponents' lead by two points. The 21st and last head provided an exciting finish, the Civil Service men securing 4 points and very nearly getting the fifth, which they lost on the measure. Had they secured the fifth shot the match would have ended in a tie; as it was the Civil Service lost by one point.

The teams were:—

KIDNAPPING HORRORS.

ALLEGED REVOLTING PRACTICES IN LANHSIEN.

The Asiatic News Agency (Peking), says:—

According to reports in the Vernacular Press, large gangs of kidnappers, who were recently very active in Peking and Tientsin, have now invaded Lanhsien, where children have been kidnapped every day. On the 12th August, says the report, a boy nine years of age, living in Tuli village was lost, and a search was instituted. To the horror of his parents the boy was found tied on a tree with his eyes, heart and kidneys extracted. The other day four kidnappers who had brought with them two children out of a certain village were met by the driver of a multi-car, a good boxer, who at once ordered them to halt, and a fight ensued, resulting in the capture of one of the gang. The kidnapper confessed that he was sent by a secret gang to kidnap and to extract the eyes, hearts and kidneys of children, and that for each "set" he would receive as compensation a sum of $500. There are men and women kidnappers. At Tangshan a certain postman succeeded in capturing two of them in the act of kidnapping. At Nanyangtun a little boy was amusing himself in a field while his parents were hoeing. Three kidnappers came along and offered some sweets to him; but upon his refusal to take them, the men knocked him down and began their horrible work with scissors and knives. Fortunately their parents heard the noise and came to the rescue. According to the confessions of those who have been arrested in the act of kidnapping, the gangs have divided their work in different areas, and they have been at work for a long time. The police authorities have taken up the matter, and have increased their forces in the neighbourhood of Lanhsien and Tangshan, and have decided that severe punishment will be meted out to the guilty.

PIRACY IN KWANGTUNG.

A CHINESE COMMENT.

The following is from the Canton Daily News:—

The piracy of the s.s. Sun Chong as reported in our news columns yesterday indicates how rampant piracy is going on these days. Taking advantage of the active campaign on the East River, many pirates and followers of Chen Chiung Ming are coming out boldly to rob and plunder. It is quite evident that if this state of affairs is allowed to go on, many of our merchantmen will have to go under. After a while there will be no ship flying the Chinese flag.

Extraordinary times call for extraordinary efforts. The pirates simply must be taught to abandon the cruel work of piracy and to devote their lives to useful tasks as good citizens. Yesterday, we saw several hundred police gendarmes marching along Wind Hon Maloo. Why not detail these men for active service at every landing place so as to prevent armed gangs from boarding the steamers. If the force is inadequate, then by all means enlarge the force of secret service men under the control of the Commissioner of Police.

Many places and firms have lodged complaints to the authorities over the interference of bandits. It is time that the authorities think seriously of the demands of business. Many merchants are suffering heavily and unless adequate protection is given, trade in Canton will show an appalling decrease. Men will take to piracy and robbery when conditions for earning an honest livelihood are not at all favourable. We must, therefore, speedily restore order, afford adequate protection, and cease to hamper the normal course of industrial and commercial development. Thus only can we hope to lessen the chances of men taking to robbery and piracy.

THE JAPAN SUBMARINE DISASTER.

OFFICIAL REPORT.

One of the Adjutants in the Navy Department gives the gist of a report made to the Naval authorities by Sub-Lieutenant Konishi, one of the survivors of the submarine No. 70:—

Submarine No. 70 was built at the Kawasaki Dockyard. She left Kobe at half past eight a.m. on the 21st August for a trial voyage. Off Kariya, Awaji, where she arrived at 10 o'clock, various trial operations were conducted, and at 1 p.m. she came up to the surface, having completed her experimental diving at a point about three nautical miles off Kariya, Lieutenant Ikeda, with other superintendent officers then came up on the deck by the conning tower, to prepare for a trial on the surface of the water and to inspect the general parts and condition of the vessel. Very soon, however, Lieut. Ikeda, finding the vessel gradually sinking by her bows, gave orders to shut the hatches and other external openings. The Lieutenant himself then went inside the submarine, and after making sure that the valve of the sea-water tank was closely shut, came on deck again. Immediately afterwards the superintendent officer Commander Kamibayashi, Engineer Lieutenant Ayuba, and some other officers, went down into the vessel by the conning tower. It was just at this time that the submarine listed at a sharp angle. The next moment the vessel sank, and Lieut. Ikeda and four other officers standing on the deck were flung into the sea by the surging waves and rescued by the guard vessels in the neighbourhood.

Nothing definite is yet known as to the cause of the disaster. Those who went down with the vessel were 48 naval officers and 40 engineers and others representing the Dockyard. Five officers and men were rescued.

The Japan Chronicle remarking that the official report is somewhat vague, says:—What appears to have happened—though it is nothing but what seems the most reasonable surmise—is that the No. 70, after she had finished her deep diving tests successfully, came to the surface, and half a dozen of those on board came out by the conning tower. After blowing out the tanks the valve could not have been properly closed, and one of the officers on deck noticed that the submarine was sinking again. By this time, however, the engine-room hatch had been opened, and though the officer rushed down and ordered everything to be closed, it was too late. The vessel was down in the water, and directly the swell poured into the open hatch all was over. She filled up and went down like a stone. It is unlikely that those on board had any prolonged suffering to endure, as they must have been drowned immediately.

THE NEW JAPANESE MINISTRY.

The following statement has been forwarded to us by Mr. Seichi Takahashi, Consul General for Japan:—

The new Ministry formed under Count Yamamoto on the 2nd of September, though not based on any one particular political party or faction, has an important meaning in that it is just such a Cabinet as was being demanded by the people.

Since the recent World's Great War, Japan, like other nations, has been affected by many influences, particularly in the sphere of thought and in her economic activities and the great majority of the Japanese people was desirous of the appearance of a strong Ministry which would cope with such a situation.

The character and ability of Count Yamamoto is well known to the world, together with his advocacy of peace.

The coming of the Yamamoto Ministry in succession to that of Kato, who succeeded in introducing the real Japan before the Washington Conference, and who concentrated his whole energy in carrying into effect the results of the Conference, is after all, nothing but the expression of the popular will.

In view of the Count's personality and of the circumstances which gave birth to his Cabinet, it is no matter of doubt that Japan, in pursuance of her peaceful policies, will co-operate with the foreign nations externally and devote her efforts to the people's happiness internally.

In view of the extraordinary time after the earthquake disaster, Premier Yamamoto is not prepared for the present to announce his principles and policies, but he is expected to do so at an opportune moment.

PREMATURELY PRONOUNCED DEAD.

CHARGE OF HOMICIDE AGAINST HOSPITAL OFFICIAL.

The resurrection of a Chinese woman, who had been pronounced dead, after she had been removed to a mortuary, was responsible for the appearance of Inspector A. Stey of the Paulun Hospital, Shanghai, and Dr. Tang Pau-suh in the Mixed Court, Shanghai last week, to answer charges of homicide.

This is believed to be the first case on record in which hospital attaches have been called upon to face such charges, as the result of alleged negligence, and great interest has been aroused amongst the medical fraternity as to the outcome.

The Chinese woman was struck by an automobile on Avenue Edward VII on July 31st. She was taken to the Paulun Hospital where she was certified as dead and taken to the Public Mortuary. There she revived and was discovered trying to walk out of the place by an attendant, but died later. It has been stated by physicians that the shock of finding herself in such a gruesome place when she recovered consciousness might well have caused her death.

The case was adjourned one week by Assistant Magistrate Li in order to investigate the question of jurisdiction, when Inspector Stey claimed French citizenship.—Shanghai Evening News.

JAPAN'S REVENUE 1922-3.

The following statement of Japan's income and expenditure for 1922-3 is taken from The Japan Advertiser of the 31st August, the penultimate issue before the great disaster that overwhelmed Tokyo and other cities:—

Japan's State revenue for the financial year 1922-1923, which has just been closed completely, shows a fair increase over the Budget for the year. In comparison with the preceding financial year, also, there is a gain. The Treasury's payments for the financial year 1922-1923 were, on the other hand, smaller than either the Budget for the year or the actual payments for the preceding year. The balance amounts to $667,655,000.

The State revenue for the fiscal year just closed amounted to ¥2,087,345,605 against ¥1,501,485,623 as estimated in the Budget. The surplus totals ¥585,859,981, 605. In comparison with the actual collection for the financial year 1922-1923, also, there is an increase by ¥21,635,070,743.

U.S. GOVERNMENT AND MRS. HARDING.

Mrs. Warren G. Harding as the widow of a President of the United States will receive an annuity of $5,000, and in addition there is due to her a total of $65,000 representing her husband's unpaid salary. These amounts are not subjected to probate.

WHAT NEXT "IN CHINA?"

In the competition for votes for the election of a President of the Chinese Republic the party with the biggest purse has won. There are now enough Members of Parliament in Peking to form a quorum. We learn from a Chinese contemporary published in Peking that while the "Separatists" were offering $200 to each member to remain away from Peking, the other side were prepared to pay each member $300 to secure his presence in Peking when Parliament is summoned to elect a President. It is said that there are now 560 members in the Capital, and there can be no doubt that on September 10th Marshal Tiao Kux will be elected President of the Chinese Republic. Thus, in the words of an appeal recently made to the provinces, it is hoped to lay "a solid foundation for the nation." We should say it is more than likely that it will cause a political earthquake. There is no very definite information as to how the prospective election of Marshal Tiao Kux is viewed at Mukden. For some time past negotiations have been in progress between the Chihli and Fengtien parties concerning the Presidential election and the indications are that Chihli has been able to give assurances to Mukden which have served to gain Marshal CHIAO TAO-LIN's neutrality, if not his active support. But there remains the Ex-President, General LI YUAN HUNG, to reckon with. He, apparently, is determined to embark on some sort of a campaign against these doings in the Capital, and with that object in view

AMERICA'S RELIEF FUND TO BE EXTENDED.

WASHINGTON, September 11th.
Although the $5,000,000 for which the President appended on behalf of the sufferers in Japan has been already exceeded and contributions are still coming in the Red Cross Society declare that continued donations will be necessary in view of the late advice with regard to the extent of the catastrophe in Japan.

Nine Red Cross ships, carrying thousands of tons of clothing, building material, food, etc., have already sailed or will sail within a few days from Pacific coast ports.

The commodities shipped have necessitated an expenditure of nearly $2,500,000.

President Coolidge has expressed to the Chairman of the Red Cross Society his personal gratification at America's response to the appeal for relief funds.

JAPAN MAY GIVE THE WORLD LEAD IN TOWN PLANNING.

LONDON, September 11th.
The Manchester Guardian, in a leader on Japan's losses, says: "We shall be much surprised if Japan, with her eager appreciation of recent discoveries and advanced ideas, does not give us an exemplary lead in town planning when she rebuilds her ruined cities, especially if the seat of Government is not removed from Tokyo to a site farther west. Whether the capital is moved will doubtless depend partly on the advice of Japan's unsurpassed experts in seismology."

LONDON, September 11th.
The anticipations in trade circles that the work of rebuilding the wrecked cities in Japan will create a demand for British steel material seem confirmed by the receipt already of large orders from Japanese firms.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPES.

OSAKA, September 12th.
An American Naval wireless message dated the 9th, instant says: "Many hundreds of lives were saved by the heroic actions of the Japanese after the earthquake. The Ambassador, Mr. Cyrus K. Wood, had a very close shave. He was sitting in his office with Colonel Barnett when the quake occurred. The latter dragged the Ambassador from his seat as the ceiling fell thereon. Late in the evening Mr. Wood's wife was standing in the garden watching the fire when the wind suddenly changed and a soon the Embassy was enveloped in flames and destroyed. Mr. Wood and his wife escaped through millions of flying sparks from fires to the Dutch Legation, which was on the edge of the burning area."

Mrs. Crane, wife of Major Crane, American League Officer on the Yokohama Bund, jumped into the Bay, where the spent hours with thousands of others protecting themselves from fire. She finally swam a quarter of a mile in a raging sea to a ship in harbour.

FOREIGNERS' ESCAPE FROM MIYANOSHITA.

Mr. Robert McIntyre and Mr. Frank Jordan, who were on the railway from Miyano-shita to Tokyo to get relief for a hundred and fifty foreigners marooned at Miyano-shita. The foreigners were subsequently brought out. They included Mr. Thomas Corcoran and wife, American military and naval language officers made long trips on foot to report to the Embassy, whence assignments of various relief services were made.

The earthquake was responsible for many franks in buildings. Modern buildings, supposedly quake-proof collapsed or were badly damaged, while the Imperial Hotel suffered no damage. Japanese houses invariably collapsed at the first shock and made wonderful fuel for the flames.

An unending stream of refugees continues to flow through and around Tokyo. Thousands are coming in search of lost relatives while other thousands are pouring out for more congenial surroundings in the country.

HELP FOR THE SUFFERERS.

MELBOURNE, September 11th.
The Commonwealth, in addition to other help, is sending building material and disinfectants to Japan.

A Rome message says the Pope has ordered the despatch of funds for the relief of Japanese sufferers.

EXPERIENCES OF THE P. & O. S.S. "DONGOLA."

Captain R. H. Griffin, R.N.R., of the P. & O. S.S. Dongola, reports as follows concerning this ship's experiences during the earthquake at Yokohama:

Saturday, 1st September, 1923. Ship at No. 8 Quay, Yokohama. Inner Harbour.

At 11.55 a.m., the ship commenced to tremble and vibrate violently, and on looking towards the shore, it was seen that a terrible earthquake was taking place. Buildings were collapsing in all directions, and in a few moments nothing could be seen for clouds of dust. When these cleared away fire could be seen starting in many directions, and in half an hour the whole city was in flames. The wind, which had been force 8 at 11 a.m., rapidly increased to force 8, direction S.W. The smoke and heat blown directly over the ships in the harbour, was intense.

Order was given to "raise steam" as quickly as possible; cable to the buoy was paid out and an anchor dropped under foot. The Barometer, which read 29.70 in. at 10 a.m., fell to 29.50 by 2 p.m.; it then commenced to rise and the wind abated to force 6.

It was then noticed that the breakwater had subsided several feet, but fortunately the two entrance lighthouses were left standing.

About 1 p.m. the piers and sheds on them were all burning fiercely, fanned by the gale. Ships alongside them let go their ropes on board (the shore ends were mostly submerged) and made their way under great difficulties outside the breakwater. Three large ships not under command passed dangerously close to the Dongola, one (the Lyons Maru) actually touching our bow plates but doing no damage; cable being slackened away. There was also considerable danger from drifting and burning lighters. One of these hit the ship and sank; about 12 of the 20 occupants were hauled on board, the remainder being drowned alongside. There was also danger from flying burning debris from the shore.

Shortly before 5 p.m. the wind died away and three boats were manned by Engineers, Quartermasters, Stewards and Lascars, and sent on shore under orders to rescue what survivors were visible along the water-front, and in the water close to the Bund where thousands had taken refuge from the flames, which almost reached them from the nearest houses. Each boat made several trips until after midnight, when there appeared to be no more people on the Bund. Upwards of two hundred and fifty souls had been rescued by that time, some of them being very badly injured, and all were in a completely destitute condition.

The utmost care was taken by the ship's company to alleviate distress and make things as comfortable as possible. A boat was despatched to the M.M. S.S. Yokohama with a request for medical assistance and stores, her Doctor rendering valuable assistance to our Surgeon. Throughout the night the sky was illuminated by the burning city.

At daylight next morning (Sunday) the boats were again manned and sent in, and more people brought off. At 9.30 a.m. it became highly dangerous for the ship and boats to remain in the inner harbour owing to the large quantities of floating oil blazing furiously and drifting in various parts of the harbour. I therefore slipped from the buoy at 9.40 a.m. and came to an anchorage outside the breakwater. A steam launch, under the charge of the Blue Funnel cargo representative (Captain Phillips), then came alongside bringing many more survivors, retreating with one lifeboat in tow to pick up many others known to be making their way to the Bund.

At 1 p.m. there were no more to be seen and boats were hoisted. The approximate number then on board was 600 of all nationalities, including many Russians, Chinese and Japanese. As many of the latter as possible were transferred to Japanese ships before leaving.

At daylight on Monday the P. & O. S.S. Dongola was closed, she having arrived from Kobe in the early hours of the morning, which place, Yokohama residents assured me, had been destroyed on Saturday morning.

I sent the Chief Officer on board to obtain information as to Kobe's fate and navigational problems. All were relieved to hear that Kobe was safe when the President Jefferson left there on Saturday at 8 p.m.

I then proceeded on my way to Kobe to land the people. The ship was also getting short of boiler water. Many ships left at the same time.

Fires were still raging on shore and the city of Yokohama looked completely destroyed, nothing remaining standing except a few blackened skeletons of foreign buildings.

The oil-fuel storage at the Naval Port at the entrance to the gulf, which had been on fire since Saturday, was still burning, and emitting dense volumes of smoke. The water at the entrance of the gulf for above two miles was covered with oil covered feet deep. The danger of this catching fire and blocking the entrance to the gulf appeared to be great. The Forts and lighthouses were partly demolished. Soundings were taken proceeding down the gulf and passing between the Forts; the depth of water being apparently the same as marked on the chart.

I despatched a wireless report to Kobe office on Saturday at 6 p.m. reporting the safety of the ship, but have no information as to whether this message got through.

I may add that I was on shore when the earthquake took place, having left the office a few minutes previously. I was in the centre on one of the principal streets and happened at the moment to be standing between two large foreign buildings, which withstood the shock. After the dust cleared away I was able to make my way over the fallen houses towards the remains of the pier, where I waded out to a small boat and got on board the Company's steam launch close to the Bund, but with no crew left on board. I was afterwards joined by five Europeans who swam off from the shore. At 5 p.m., the wind having dropped, we caught a small sampan just awash, hauled it out, and made our way to the ship.

The Chief Officer, Mr. C. C. Dickinson, ably took command of the ship in my absence.

I am glad to be able to report that the behaviour of the whole ship's company was splendid throughout this most trying time and well worthy of the Company's traditions.

I consider that the Purser's Department particularly distinguished themselves in their eagerness to man the rescue boats and in their great efforts to care for the sufferers when on board.

The ship's Surgeon, Dr. M. L. Young, also worked without rest for practically three days, having to perform difficult operations without aid.

I have received a letter of appreciation from the principal people saved, thanking the ship's company.

The total number of survivors on board this ship leaving Yokohama was 505, of whom one lady and one boy died and were buried at sea.

NARRATIVE BY A YOKOHAMA EDITOR.

Mr. Douglas Adam, editor of the Japan Gazette, who, with Mrs. Adam arrived in Kobe from Yokohama on the P. & O. Dongola, wrote for the Kobe Herald the following account:

The first shock, which was the greatest of a long series and the most severe, took place at 11.57 a.m. on September 1st. All the business houses were in full swing, running, with full staffs, doing up the month's accounts, paying salaries, etc., the previous day being the last of the month—having been a Bank Holiday due to the Emperor's birthday. The shock was successively vertical and horizontal, first jolting all the foreign buildings out of plumb and then making them collapse like card houses. Here and there a building of special construction stood the shock in part. Soon, however, fire started up in the ruins and under a strong south-east wind spread rapidly all over the city, virtually flattening it out, save for heaps of debris in which corpses were mixed. The water supply was, of course, cut off and all the efforts of the firemen in the heavy wind were unable to do anything to check or divert the havoc.

The destruction of Yokohama—the location of the shock being apparently almost immediately under the city—was comprehensive, the foreign "Settlement" comprising two or three business streets, with the Bund along the Water Front, the foreign residential quarter on the Bluff and the Japanese city proper being all laid low. The first movement of the population was a panic stricken surge en masse, punctuated with gallant rescues of pinned-down victims, in some cases sacrifices of life. Open spaces became graveyards.

On the fringes of the city people made for the water-front or the country. On the Bluff, the Bluff Gardens, the foreign cricket ground, race and golf course were havens. In the Settlement there was only the Recreation Park, formerly the foreign cricket ground. Some fortunate people found boats which took them to vessels in port. Others, massed in the Park rimmed with flames, the fierce heat driving them from place to place, the ground being riven with deep crevices which, on the bursting of the city water-pipes, became filled with water and overflowing, converted all low-lying areas into lakes and rivers of deep liquid mud. On the whole the Japanese accepted the situation with wonderful resignation. A few Socialistic outcries, apparently, dramatically blaming the Government for the natural disaster and lack of measures to counter it, but the reception they met was apathetic and limited.

All food and water supplies being cut off, the first thought of the surviving foreigners was to reach some source of supplies. Here the foreign ships in harbour came gallantly to the rescue. Fortunately, there were a number of foreign steamers in the bay, including the C.P.O.S. Empress of Australia, M.M. Andre Lebon, P. & O. Dongola, Ben Line Dongola, the U.S.S.R. Steel Inventor, etc., besides the T.K.K. Korea Maru, etc. The American liner President Jefferson arrived from the south on Monday evening. The Japanese ships were apparently taken by surprise, but the foreigners rose immediately to the occasion and sent in their boats with water, taking off refugees of every nationality who desired to escape.

One of our boat-loads of women and children made as comfortable as possible and food and even clothes given all the exhausted half-naked fugitives.

The earthquake had been so violent and the following fire so fierce that few had saved anything but what they stood up in. The lightest of summer wear, torn and stiff with mud, smoke and usually with blood. Some of the wounds were ghastly and beyond help. Several died on board. One who succumbed on board the Dongola on September 3rd, was young Frank Purlington, 12-year son of a well-known British engineer visiting the Orient. Mrs. A. L. Robinson died on Tuesday, too, at midnight. Both were buried at sea.

As the number of would-be refugees increased on board the foreign ships it was seen it would be impossible to meet the occasion without transportation. It became clearer that there was no hope of any immediate restoration of a foreign Colony at Yokohama, the debris having to be cleared away and communications for supply of food-stuffs re-established. Therefore, it was decided to send off the Dongola post haste for Kobe on Sept. 2nd, first transferring to the Empress of Australia, etc., all who desired. On the other hand, all desperate cases were transferred to the Dongola so as to give them medical aid as soon as possible.

The P. & O. Dongola, therefore, left Yokohama on Tuesday morning and by noon had 256 miles to cover, which at 13 knots would bring her to Kobe at 10 a.m., on Wednesday. The ship was, throughout the run, practically placed at the disposal of the refugees, 501 in number. Everything possible was done for their comfort, and the deep impression made on the passengers was such that an attempt was made to voice it in a letter of grateful appreciation to the Captain signed by some of the passengers who represented the feelings of all. The principal officers of the Dongola are:—Capt. Griffin, Chief Officer Dickinson, 2nd Officer Coster, 3rd Officer M. Boyd, 4th Officer R. E. S. Tucker, 1st Engineer J. Fens, 2nd Engineer Thornburn, 3rd Engineer Holloway, 4th Engineer Golden. All the seamen were willing and sympathetic conjurers. "Special" mention is deserved by the personal services, throughout the ship, headed by the Doctor, referred to elsewhere, and genial Chief Steward Ayres with his able corps of stewards. Stewardesses Mrs. B. Wilson, Mrs. Woods and Miss Katon, and votaries of the commissariat, barber-shop, etc. The food and service were excellent, and the free treatment of the unfortunate passengers was voted by the beneficiaries as worthy of the best traditions of the British Merchant service.

Owing to the confusion that prevailed in Yokohama after the earthquake, the stories of the refugees were naturally piecemeal, but all were vivid and told different individual experiences, so that the effect was to present the general description already given. From these refugees, it was impossible to gain an idea of all the foreigners who had survived but it was possible to list a number of foreigners whose death was practically established or was considered certain.

The writer gives a list which includes many of the names given in lists we have already published. The names that are new are:—Mr. Dejardin, French Consul, and Mme. Dejardin and child, Mr. G. M. T. de Silva, Mr. Cotte and Mme. Cotte, Mr. Rubattelli, Mr. H. L. Frank, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Ribeiro and son, Mr. L. Zambach, Mr. Paul Cannon, Mr. Angolia, Mr. Gimson.

The personal experiences of survivors varying in detail are endless and often the horrors of the occasion seem to have resulted in a disinclination to expatiate on a characteristic of many who passed through it late war. On that account it is evident that possibly much of the gallantry and courage of the earthquake is unknown and will remain unknown. Some who are known to have suffered mainly through attempts to rescue others, even though such attempts succeeded, cannot speak of those ghastly hours.

The Dongola people first knew of the earthquake by the vessel being thrown violently about. Then the sky-line of Yokohama, buildings seemed instantly changed as the big buildings toppled and fires quickly flamed up followed by dull reports like heavy guns at intervals.

Then Japanese gumpans began to arrive in the heavy sea and sickening sights ensued. Though the ship's ladders were down the men in the boats seemed unable to understand and the boats were soon being dashed against the hull in the high seas. Women and children in the boats were neglected, while one or two men held on to the foot of the ladder, blocking the gangway. The Dongola men threw ropes and life belts out but were unable to do more and were horrified by the scene. Very few were rescued from these first boats. The bay seemed full of floating corpses.

An eye-witness in the Settlement happening to be looking at the Bluff skyline saw the familiar peaks of the Christ Church, the Union Church, the Catholic Church, the Fairmount, etc., topple and disappear. Others saw collapse the British-Hospital down into the Bay. The U.S. Hospital down into the Foreign Cemetery, where the graves were torn up, the Gaiety Theatre and in fact all the foreign residences.

The prison at Negishi collapsed and many were killed. Some convicts, who escaped started on a pilaging tour. Many of them were Coreans. A land invaded the German Iron Works, of which Mr. Britton (British) is the head. He is so beloved in the neighbourhood that he is called "Father of the Village." He kindly permitted the villagers to come into his compound and protected them and their possessions from looters with a revolver.

Many buildings on the edge of the Bluff fell into Motomachi or on to the reclaimed foreshore. All the ordinary roads of the Bluff were obliterated. A few people clambered up somehow. Those who wished to descend were let down from the Hospital cliff by ropes.

A TRIBUTE TO THE "DONGOLA."

Letter of Appreciation from Foreign Refugees on P. & O. S.S. Dongola to the Captain, Officers and Men of the ship:—
DEAR CAPTAIN GRIFFIN,—Those who have experienced the unforgettable kindness and consideration which you and your officers and men have shown them in their appalling calamity which has visited Yokohama, are unfortunately able to do no more than express in feeble words their heartfelt thanks.

You will no doubt claim that as British sailors you have done no more than your duty; but there are degrees in which duty can be done and we wish to emphasize our conviction that in your treatment of us, unfortunately, you, your officers and men have done more than your duty—you have even been more than kind.

Gratefully and affectionately, for ourselves and for all refugees on board,

Kenneth Wilson.

HOW SOME FOREIGN RESIDENTS WERE KILLED.

A Kobe telegram to the N.Y. Daily News states that Mr. Morrison, of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, was killed as a result of his head being crushed by falling debris as he was about to enter the Club. Capt. Swain died in hospital after he saw his wife killed. Mr. A. H. Tait, of the Chartered Bank, and Mrs. Nicoll were outside the Bank premises when they were killed by a falling wall. The whole of the Bank's European staff, inside the building, escaped, sustaining nothing more serious than contusions and bruises when the building collapsed.

NEWS RECEIVED AT THE JAPANESE CONSULATE.

Further official information from the Foreign Office at Tokyo received at the Japanese Consulates late on Tuesday night is as follows:—

AREA DEVASTATED BY THE EARTHQUAKE.

Since the big earthquake of September 1st and up to six o'clock the morning of the 6th 1,325 shocks were registered at the Tokyo Observatory. The area affected by the earthquake covers 40 miles North and South and 50 miles East and West. This area covers seven Prefectures, including 33 Counties and 5 cities. The actual damage to property had not been ascertained but it is known to be very heavy. The Imperial Villa at Nikko is safe except for a part of the walls surrounding the villa, which have collapsed. The Emperor and Empress are safe. The Prince Regent, who was at the Imperial Palace at Tokyo, left the Akasaka Palace during the afternoon of 1st inst. and lived in a tent erected in the Imperial Palace grounds until the afternoon of the 6th inst. when he left for the Akasaka Palace.

THE CASUALTIES.

The number of corpses gathered and burnt in Tokyo up to the 8th inst. was more than 60,000. In addition to this it is pointed out that there must have been many drowned and burned to death. The number of sick and wounded who have received attention or who are inmates of the temporary relief hospitals numbered 500,000. In Yokohama it is estimated that there are 110,000 dead and injured. This is about a quarter of the whole population of the town. The casualties in the Chiba and Kanagawa Prefectures are said to be very high. 35,000 BUILDINGS BURNT IN TOKYO.

According to investigations made by the Central Police at Tokyo the number of houses burnt there is 28,000. This is 71 per cent. of the whole of the buildings in Tokyo. The number of citizens affected by the earthquake is 1,354,000. This is about 76 per cent. of the whole population.

RE-CONSTRUCTION.

A meeting was held in Tokyo on September 8th, attended by 47 eminent business men and by representatives of the Government. The object of the meeting was to discuss ways and means for the re-construction of business. On the 8th September a meeting of bankers was held in the Nippon Bank for the purpose of considering the financial situation of the banks. At that meeting it was decided that those banks who were desirous of re-opening should receive all possible assistance from the Nippon Bank. As a result of this the following banks are preparing to re-open:—Yasuda, Daiichi, Dai San, Jugo.

RAILWAYS.

The progress of the work in repairing the railways is going on favorably and the supply of the necessary materials is now becoming sufficient.

FOOD.

There is sufficient rice now in Tokyo and Yokohama to meet all needs for the next two and a half months.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE CAPITAL.

The Department for Home Affairs is considering plans for the re-construction of the city of Tokyo and the persistent rumour that the capital of the Empire is to be moved, is groundless.

At the time of the earthquake all the citizens acted very coolly and rendered every possible assistance to those less fortunate than themselves. Their assistance and courageous attitude throughout has received the high admiration of the Foreign community in Japan.

BANKS RE-OPEN.

The Mitsubishi, Kanryo and the Specie Banks re-commenced business as from September 8th.

CARE OF AMBASSADORS AND CONSULAR STAFFS.

Members of the Diplomatic Corps are at present staying at hotels and private residences and they are receiving every assistance from the Foreign Office. The Foreign Office has sent officials to Yokohama to look after the various Consular bodies. Those in need are being supplied with provisions, whilst arrangements have been made for all information concerning the Consular bodies to be translated by the Foreign Office and passed along.

ESTIMATE OF THE NUMBER OF FOREIGNERS KILLED.

During the earthquake and fire there were 150 deaths amongst Europeans and Americans; most of these occurred in Yokohama. Most of the foreign survivors now in Tokyo are staying at the Imperial Hotel.

CHINA'S RELIEF MEASURES.

The Chinese Government decided on the 4th inst. to make an immediate appropriation of $300,000 for the relief of distress in Japan, and to send out instructions to the provinces to render assistance to the Japanese nation. At the same time it was decided to instruct the authorities of Kiangsu, Chokiang, and Anhui to immediately export 300,000 shih of rice to Japan, this exportation to be handled by the merchants. It was further decided to organise a Relief Society with which the existing Relief Associations, Red Cross Associations, the banking world, the police and military authorities, the Press, the Chambers of Commerce, and charitable institutions were to be invited to co-operate. It was further decided to send one or two ships to Japan with medical aid and provisions, and these ships were to be used to bring back Chinese residents.

Marshal Tiao Kun, the Expectant President, made a personal contribution of $40,000 for the relief of distress in Japan.

Dr. Wellington Koo, the Foreign Minister, sent to the Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs a telegraphic message of sympathy on behalf of the Government and people of China.

The Peking Municipality has devoted $100,000 to the relief of distress in Japan.

HONGKONG RELIEF MEASURES.

From a bulletin issued by the Hongkong Relief Committee yesterday giving an account of its activities from September 8th to the 11th inst. we learn that a letter was received from the Japanese Consul-General on the 11th inst., stating that urgent requirements as regards foodstuffs are met for the present but that medical supplies and clothing were urgently needed. The Committee, consequently decided to hold up for the present shipments of margarine, bacon and poultry.

Telegraphic correspondence is passing between the Committee and the Commander-in-Chief regarding tentative enquiries as to the employment of the s.s. China as relief ship. The Commander-in-Chief recommended the employment of the s.s. Yawfing with accommodation for 50 first class and 20 second class passengers, as the best solution of the question. The ship is in Japanese waters and instantly ready for use.

A Committee of local ladies has been formed to collect second-hand European clothing at the City Hall for despatch to devastated areas. An advertisement in another column regarding this will be found.

The Japanese section of the Committee submitted that galvanized sheets, wire nails, and roofing composition for re-construction of temporary buildings; also supplies of winter singlets for adults and children, flannel shirts or flannel pieces goods to make shirts, sewing needles and cotton thread might be despatched direct to Yokohama and they have undertaken to ship free and covering insurance thereon.

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

The report is current that when the earthquake occurred at Yokohama, Capt. Kent, the well-known pilot, of the Empress boats, was on the jetty and was washed off. He succeeded in getting picked up by the Steel Navigator, the ship that fouled the Empress of Australia's propellers, and it is stated that he directed the operation by which the ship towed the Empress lines to a safe position. Capt. Kilvert, of the Steel Navigator, was among those killed on shore.

Mrs. Costello, wife of the O.P.S. Inspector at Yokohama, was in her room on the top floor of the Grand Hotel when it collapsed, but miraculously escaped with a few bruises.

The M.M. s.s. Cordillera, which sailed yesterday for Shanghai and Japan, has on board a Mission of French Army Doctors, together with medical supplies, placed at the disposal of the Japanese Government by the Governor-General of Indo-China for relief work. This vessel also carries a consignment of 200 tons of rice for the destitute.

A daughter of Commander Sherbrooke of Oxted Hall, Southwark, she married first Captain Frederick Ogle of the Royal Navy, and in 1912 the Earl of Elgin as his second wife when he was 64 years of age. Lady Elgin is not known in India, as her husband's Viceroyalty lasted from 1894 to 1899.

CHANGING HUMAN CHARACTER BY SURGICAL OPERATIONS.

London, August 16th.
"Such power is terrible, but handled by a true servant of mankind will be glorious." This is how a Harley Street expert in an article to the Weekly Dispatch describes the possible developments on Voronoff's forthcoming revelations at the Surgical Congress in Rome where he is taking two 70 year old patients as proof of the efficacy of the gland treatment of personality. The expert says that personality was the greatest single fact of human life until yesterday and also the greatest mystery in science. That silence has been broken, but the truth seems to be too widely improbable to be believed, for it would enable the possessor of the truth to make or unmake human nature by a simple operation. The successful planting of thyroid glands on half-witted children with miraculous results has marked the beginning of a new age. We know now that personality depends on the possession of certain organs. Hence comes the surgeon's new power to "operate on the soul" by grafting portions of missing or weak glands. Hence also arises a new study of personality which is still in infancy. Criminals, possibly may be good citizens. Effeminate men and masculine women are simply victims of curable infirmities. Their characters may be changed. Cowardice becomes a curable ailment and not a shameful lack of character. Doctors nowadays frequently prescribe glands where good tempered people become morose or people of strong personality develop weakness. The results are often a miraculous improvement not only of mental but also of physical qualities. Will this power grow until doctors become "as gods?"

CLASS SEPARATION.

SIR HENRY NEWBOLT ON LABOUR AND BRUTE FORCE

Sir Henry Newbolt was the guest of honour at a dinner of the Overseas Education League at the Trocadero Restaurant on July 31st "in token of the appreciation and esteem in which he is held by the citizens of Canada and of their deep appreciation of his message to the Dominion when inaugurating the National Lectureship Scheme in the early months of 1922."

Sir Henry Newbolt, in responding to the toast of his health, said that the great evil of the world to-day was separation. Speaking from the experience of a recent visit to Canada, which included no fewer than 22 cities, he was of opinion that the Dominion was probably the happiest country in the world to-day, but it would be still happier if there were less separation than existed, not only between Ontario and Quebec, but between the distances separating St. John's from Victoria or Vancouver. In England we had the evil of separation, too, but it was the separation not of distances, but of classes.

There were, for instance, two Conservative Parties and two Liberal Parties, but as a matter of political fact they should be only one party, as opposed to the other party which derived its political strength from those who lived by manual labour. The Labour Party, so called, while it preached international peace, proposed to substitute for international warfare a kind of national class warfare under which questions of national interest would be submitted to the arbitrament of what was practically a form of brute force. It meant, in the final result, a class war in which one section of the community would have to submit to the will of another as expressed by force. That was the worst instance of separation that existed in the world. (Cheers.)
